What is the MRT?

It's an emergency mental health service that provides immediate response for anyone in Prince George's County who:

- is experiencing a behavioral, emotional, psychiatric, or substance use emergency crisis
- may be a danger to themselves or others
- is unwilling or unable to seek help for themselves

How does the MRT work?

The MRT will dispatch a two-person team to the caller's location, arriving within 45-60 minutes for an in-person assessment and intervention as deemed necessary by a mental health clinician.

What happens after the initial emergency crisis has been addressed?

The MRT will create a Crisis Safety Plan, connect the individual with local behavioral health resources, and may stay in contact with the individual and/or family for up to 4 weeks.

How does the community benefit from the MRT?

Beyond supporting residents through an emergency crisis, the MRT offers a safe, effective alternative to hospitalization – reducing the number of emergency room visits and connecting individuals to appropriate resources based on need.
